October 2014 Orders Comments

Trailing three-month orders grew modestly, continuing to reflect a macroeconomic environment trending slightly favorable. Overall market conditions remained unchanged, with mixed demand levels among industries and geographies. All business segments reported orders growth, with emerging markets stronger than mature markets. Currency translation was negligible.

Process Management orders growth remained supported by high levels of energy and chemical investment globally. Asia growth was strong, led by robust performance in China, Latin America increased at a double-digit rate, driven by oil and gas and mining projects, and growth in North America was moderate, benefiting from broad-based infrastructure investments. Europe and Middle East/Africa orders declined. Currency translation deducted 2 percentage points, primarily due to backlog revaluation.

Industrial Automation orders increased modestly, as demand for industrial goods continued to recover slowly. Growth in the U.S. and Asia offset soft market conditions in Europe. The power generating alternators business declined modestly.

Network Power orders, which exclude the embedded computing and power business, grew moderately, supported by data center investment growth in Asia and Europe and demand for telecommunications infrastructure globally. Market conditions for data center infrastructure remained soft in the Americas.

Climate Technologies orders grew moderately, as global refrigeration markets continued to recover and air conditioning demand increased in Asia and Middle East/Africa. Orders growth in the U.S. and Europe air conditioning businesses remained steady.

Commercial & Residential Solutions orders increased moderately, driven by continued strength in U.S. residential markets. Growth was led by the professional tools and food waste disposers businesses.
