Other Key Initiatives Furthering Leap Performance

Transitioned executive management team to more closely align with customers and improve execution

Appointed new EVP/COO to lead customer focused support organizations

Appointed new EVP, Field Operations and appointed three area presidents to improve field execution

Added other senior management leaders focused on vision and execution

Fundamentally overhauled back-office systems

- Replaced billing, inventory and point-of-sale systems
- Believe new systems significantly improved planning, forecasting, supply chain and procurement capabilities

Continued management of balance sheet for liquidity and growth

- Refinanced $1.1B of senior unsecured debt to 2020, reducing cash interest expense by $10M annually
- Recently issued $400M of senior notes to provide additional working capital for growth initiatives

Entered into key strategic transactions

- Formed new joint venture in South Texas, acquiring ~323,000 former customers of Pocket Communications to create Leap s deeply-penetrated market
- Acquired complete ownership and control of Cricket markets in Chicago, Southern Wisconsin and Oregon
- Believe transactions improved competitive position by increasing our strength and scale while expanding offerings to customers

Better utilization of spectrum resources
Entered into agreement to swap 10-MHz of unused spectrum in exchange for 10-MHz of additional spectrum in 7 existing Cric markets

1Q11 churn reached lowest level in almost 10 years:

Consolidated churn of 3.1%, improving 140 basis points Y-O-Y

1Q11 voice churn of 2.8%, improving 170 basis points Y-O-Y

Churn improvements believed to be direct result of changes management implemented:

All-inclusive pricing

Smartphones at affordable prices

Nationwide voice and data coverage Believe lower levels of churn signal productive, structural business change

May experience some near-term moderation in churn improvement

Leap s Strategy Widely Supported 24 Leap executed well by driving growth mainly through smartphone adoption while containing opex. Despite upcoming seasonal net add softness in 2Q and 3Q, we expect the benefits of rising ARPU to translate into EBITDA margin expansion from 17% in 1Q11 to 22% in 4Q11.

- Deutsche Bank, 5/6/11

We believe that given the high ASPs for LTE handsets coupled with the painfully slow smartphone experience of 1xRTT speeds, Metro finds itself between a rock and a hard place. Leap, on the other hand, might have found itself in a sweet spot, where it could take advantage of falling 3G handset prices and leverage smartphone growth (and the Android platform) to grow EBITDA and margins faster than consensus anticipates in 2012.

- Citadel, 5/25/11

We expect continued success in existing markets plus ramping execution in new markets will allow Leap to generate a 16%+ EBITDA CAGR 2011-2014 which at the current 2012E EBITDA multiple leaves the company, in our view, among the most attractively valued growth-based investments in our coverage universe.

- Bank of America Merrill Lynch, 5/5/11

We believe the increased smartphone penetration coupled with the All-Inclusive plan will continue to improve churn as such, we are trimming 2011E churn by 20 bps to 3.6%.

RBC Capital, 5/6/11 Leap showed solid execution of its turnaround strategy that began back in August 10. While we continue to believe Leap has good potential, in the near term, its go-to-market strategy is still in transition and is carrying substantial near term costs. LEAP s focus on smart phones is beginning to show benefits in ARPU, churn, and subscriber growth

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Leap s Commitment to Good Corporate Governance 27
All directors (other than CEO) are independent under NASDAQ rules; all have alignment of interests with stockholders Wide range of relevant operational and financial expertise represented Non-executive Chairman of the Board Directors are elected annually

Each board committee composed entirely of independent directors
All directors attended more than 75% of Board and committee meetings in 2010 Company has adopted and disclosed Corporate Governance Guidelines

Leap s Board Continually Looks To Deliver Increased Value To Stockholders

In 2007, Leap engaged in discussions with MetroPCS following its unsolicited public offer

Board determined Metro s offer allocated disproportionate synergy value to Metro and offered essentially no premium to Leap stockholders

Leap and Metro s discussions also limited by Leap s 4Q07 restatement and FCC-mandated M&A quiet period for spectrum auction participants

In 2008 and 2009, Leap approached Metro regarding possible joint opportunities, including partnerships to own/operate certain markets but significant discussions did not develop Leap also engaged in discussions with AWS spectrum holders and others regarding strategic and operating opportunities

In 2010, Leap undertook comprehensive review of strategic alternatives to build stockholder value

Board added additional independent directors to help oversee process and ensure broad perspective

Appointed Special Committee of independent directors to oversee review

Special Committee and its financial advisors initiated discussions with numerous parties regarding potential strategic opportunities, including MetroPCS

Leap also began developing important new product and service plan offerings, which it believed would significantly improve operational performance

Special Committee and Board unanimously determined to pursue Leap s current operational strategy rolled out in 2010, which Leap believes has yielded significant results

28

Leap s compensation program tied to corporate performance, aligning interests of management with those of stockholders

Substantial majority of total compensation opportunity consists of annual cash bonus and long-term equity, which are tied to corporate and individual performance

2010 was period of continued, intense competition within wireless industry and ongoing transition in Leap s business, as new initiatives were implemented to improve competitive positioning and operational performance

Because many of Leap s new initiatives were introduced in 2H10, they did not significantly impact full-year 2010 results but are now leading to improved financial and operational performance

Compensation earned by senior management, including CEO, reflects business and responsible executive compensation

No increases in CEO s $750K base salary or annual target bonus in 2010 or 2011, which were significantly below 50th percentile provided by peer companies

CEO recommended that he receive no cash bonus award for 2010 based upon Company s business transition and expected near-term business performance

More than two-thirds of CEO s total compensation for 2010 consisted of long-term equity compensation, primarily 30

Since announcing proxy

Pentwater has reduced its net holdings in Leap stock by ~40% (even selling on day it filed its initial proxy statement) (1)(2)

Established short position covering more than 1.6M Leap shares, equal to ~67% of its 2.4M shares held as of 6/20/11 (2)

Announced public proxy fight without first discussing operational proposals or suggestions with the Company (and promptly started selling as stock price rose)

Waited until end of nomination period to attempt to nominate directors

In Leap s view, did not comply with bylaw requirements

Failed to disclose material facts about Pentwater and its nominees, including that one nominee is related to Pentwater portfolio manager and true size of its short position

Pentwater Interested Only In Short-Term Profits

Pentwater Capital Management is an opportunistic investor with no long-term commitment to Leap and interests that differ from other stockholders

According to Pentwater s definitive proxy statement filed with the SEC on July 5, 2011, Pentwater sold 22,600 Leap shares and purchased 2,600 Leap shares on June 20, 2011.

(2)
See Pentwater s definitive proxy statement filed with the SEC on July 5, 2011 for additional disclosure regarding Pentwater s activity in Leap common stock and options.

Leap adopted poison pill

entrench management and stockholders

Tax benefit preservation plan adopted to deter potential ownership change under tax laws that would jeopardize ~$2B of Leap s NOLs

Generally ownership change occurs when greater than 50% change in ownership by 5% stockholders in any rolling 3-year period. When Plan implemented, Leap believed cumulative ownership change was in the mid-40s

Plan restricted acquisition of 5% or more of stock by new holders without exemption by Board, but also restricted existing 5% holders (including MHR Fund Management) from acquiring additional shares

When Plan adopted, no stockholder had indicated it would be nominating directors

On June 16, 2011, when finalizing items for 2011 Annual Meeting, Board:

reviewed cumulative ownership change by 5% stockholders, which had decreased to 29% as a result of decrease, determined Plan was no longer necessary; and terminated Plan after more than 2 months of silence from Pentwater and before Pentwater filed proxy statement to pursue contest

Pentwater never requested a waiver to acquire greater than 5% of Leap shares; in fact, Pentwater sold Leap shares while Plan was in place

Leap SG&A Comparable to MetroPCS
44

Leap SG&A comparable to Metro SG&A on apples-to-apples comparison

Metro reports SG&A in aggregate (1Q11: $169.8M); identifies selling cost component (1Q11: $91.9M) in CPGA reconciliation

Leap separately reports G&A (1Q11: $95.4M) and selling cost (1Q11: $109.8M)

Leap, however, includes Customer Care and Billing expense (1Q11: $33.7M) in reported G&A; Metro does not include in reported G&A but instead includes in Cost of Service

Bar charts above eliminate $33.7M of Leap 1Q11 Customer Care and Billing expense from Leap G&A to align with Metro SG&A reporting methodology

Leap sells greater percentage of handsets in Company-owned stores. Leap Selling Cost reflects expenses related to larger number of retail stores and retail store employees

Adjusted Capital Efficiency Analysis

MetroPCS added $93MM, $92MM, and $77MM of capital lease assets in 2008, 2009, and 2010, respectively, while Leap added none

These capital lease transactions are analogous to capital expenditures

Add assets to balance sheet and increase net debt

Due to capital lease accounting, this kind of lease capex does not run through the cash flow statement because at the initial transaction date no cash changes hands

Adjusted Capital Efficiency analysis includes these capital leases for MetroPCS
